WESLEYAN COLLEGE PROGRAM IS PUBLIC

Methodist Educational Institution Will Turn Out a Big Class of Graduates.

BUCKHANNON, June 15.—The twenty-sixth annual commencement of West Virginia Wesleyan College will be held here June 18 to 21, inclusive, and never before have such elaborate plans been made for the occasion. The inauguration of Doctor Wallace B. Fleming as president of the college will equal in importance and outlay in pomp and ceremony the actual exercises of commencement day. At this function the governor of West Virginia, the state superintendent of schools, the presidents of West Virginia University, Drew Theological Seminary, Dickinson College, Bethany College and many other educational institutions will speak. Dr. Fleming will deliver his inaugural address as the climax of the speeches incident to the ceremony. The date for the inauguration of Dr. Fleming is Tuesday, June 20, and as this is also Alumni day and the day for the dedication of the new Raymond Science Hall it is anticipated that the very largest crowd that ever visited Buckhannon will be here. For several months a committee has been working on the plans for this occasion and nothing has been left undone. President Tipton, of Drew Seminary, will make the principal address at the inauguration and President Welch, of Ohio Wesleyan University, who was but recently elected a bishop, will speak at the dedication of Raymond Science Hall. Baccalaureate Sunday will be June 18. Dr. Henry C. Howard, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church here, will preach the baccalaureate sermon and in the evening Dr. McMaisters, president of Mount Union College, will deliver the annual sermon to the Christian Associations. Monday night the cantata by Cowen, "The Rose Maiden," will be rendered by the Wesleyan Choral Union, assisted by Professors Harroun and Adams of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music faculty. Wednesday, which is commencement day, will be featured by the graduation of the largest class in the College of Liberal Arts that Wesleyan has ever had, and by the addresses of Dr. C. E. Allen, pastor of the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal church in Wheeling, and by Bishop Anderson. Dr. Allen is a recent addition to the Wesleyan conference, coming here from Buffalo, N. Y., where for several years he was pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Bishop Anderson has spoken at former Wesleyan commencements and is too well known to need further introduction. Plans for Alumni day are especially well arranged and through correspondence it has been ascertained that a record-breaking crowd will attend the alumni dinner and reunion Tuesday night. Three baseball games with Ohio Wesleyan University on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday are the athletic features of the commencement, and the play by the Shakespeare Club, as well as the prize contests and the class day exercises will offer plenty of amusement.

CONFERENCE OF COLORED METHODISTS

Is in Session at African Methodist Episcopal Church in This City.

The district conference of the West Virginia annual conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church, convening at Price's Chapel African Methodist Episcopal church, opened Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. After appropriate devotional services led by the Rev. W. W. Brown, B. S. D. D., the annual sermon was delivered by Presiding Elder R. R. Downs, D. D.

After the sermon the following officers were elected in the organization: President, the Rev. F. Herman Gow, of Charleston; secretary, the Rev. W. E. Gibbons, of Ceredo; and the Rev. John M. Henderson, D. D., of Parkersburg, reporter to church periodicals; the Rev. G. Horace Jenkins, of Weston, reporter to local papers, and the Rev. N. W. Brown, B. S. D. D., Choister.

After the organization was perfected the reports from the various churches were given which showed an increase in the church along all lines.

A recess was taken. The afternoon session was largely taken up discussing the moral, spiritual and educational conditions of the race through the state.

Under the head of the latter the public schools came in for a large share. There was naught but praise for the school system of West Virginia.

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions, appropriately setting forth the recognition of and appreciation for what the state is doing for the race through the schools. The Rev. Mr. Brown, the Rev. Mr. Gow, and the Rev. Mr. Jenkins compose the committee.

The day was appropriately closed with preaching at 8:30. The Rev. J. M. Henderson, D. D., after an inspiring song and devotional service conducted by the Revs. Brown and J. T. Gibbons preached an inspiring and up-lifted sermon, based upon Luke 7:11-18.

Among other things the speaker said that in the compassion of Jesus we see Him as a man. In His power to call from the dead we see Him as God. He closed with the thought that we should be encouraged by the fact that there is the hope and evidence of a resurrection unto life eternal.

This ended a day fraught with interest and inspiration. Tonight, greeting from the local church. Mayor G. H. Gordon will be present to address the conference. A hearty welcome to all.

DEMOCRATS

plause and cheers at his reference to his Americanism and the achievements of the Democratic administration and his denunciation of the Republican platform.

Senator James departed widely from the printed text of his speech but the sentiment he presented was substantially the same. When he recounted the horrors of war and the president's efforts to preserve peace, W. J. Bryan, his face flushed with emotion, rose to his feet and applauded vigorously.

When James recounted the president's diplomatic successes in the negotiations with Germany the delegates wanted to hear it again.

"Repeat it," they demanded.

James repeated his statements and the crowd rose up and broke loose with cheers.

The band swung into "America" and the "Star Spangled Banner." Hats and flags went into the air. Somebody cried:

"Three cheers for Wilson."

The crowd roared the answer.

Stanch onswears worn from the floor and a march of delegates through the hall was started. The aisles became choked because the demonstration was begun without organized leadership. The congestion aided in shortening the demonstration.

When James finished there were more cheers and applause and calls for "Bryan."

Senator James appealed to the convention to quiet down and hear the rules committee report, but his efforts were futile until he announced that Mr. Bryan had left the building and would speak in the Coliseum later.

That satisfied the crowd and they heard the rules report, which provided for the nominations at 8 o'clock to-night. After some debate it was decided to adjourn until 9 o'clock when the nominations will be made.

"ACHIEVEMENTS" OF WILSON ARE LAUDED

ST. LOUIS, June 15.—The achievements of the Wilson administration in enacting beneficial legislation and in keeping the country at peace without sacrifice of the national honor were pronounced epoch-making in American history by Senator Ollie M. James, of Kentucky, in his address today as permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention.

"During three years of its national control," said Senator James, "Democracy has enacted into law more progressive remedial legislation than the nation has ever had written upon its statute books since its birth. In former national contests in the last two decades our party came as a prophet. Today we come with deeds, not words; with performance, not promise. The Democratic party has kept its word with the American people. We have made good."

The chairman reviewed at length the legislative record of the administration and eulogized the president for his direction of foreign affairs. The Democrats, he said, had enacted a tariff law under which monopolies were curbed and unexampled prosperity attained; a banking law taking the money control out of the hands of an oligarchy and making panics no longer possible; and many reform measures of lesser importance.

Does Not Bully.
He declared President Wilson's Mexican policy and his course in protecting American rights against the encroachments of European belligerents had shown all the world that the president "neither bullies the weak nor fears the strong."

In a concluding appeal for the triumph of patriotism above politics, Senator James said the renomination of such a president in partisan convention ought not to be necessary, and that to discredit him might pale the hand that could write the peace treaty of the world.

At the outset the senator referred briefly to President Wilson's campaign against lobbying in Congress and pointed out that under this administration the constitution has been amended for the first time since the Civil war when "we freed the Senate from the control of the great interests by making it elective by the people at the polls." He then enquired as the Underwood-Simmons tariff act as one of which the party was justly proud.

Monopoly Not Fostered.
"Not a schedule in its fosters a monopoly," he said. "Our Republican friends told us it would close the factories, all the streets with idle men, produce a panic, create soup houses and distress would reign everywhere; but we rejoice today to point to an unexampled prosperity in the nation with labor more generally employed, at higher rates, shorter hours, and better conditions than ever before. Our Republican friends tell us that after the war is over poor, stricken, prostrate, torn, bleeding Europe will take our home market from us. I have no such fear. America is going to take the markets of the world. But we shall cut from them the last hope of having even a false issue, for we shall pass a bill creating a tariff board to gather the facts created by new war conditions."

Turning to the federal reserve law, Senator James declared that it alone averted a panic at the outbreak of the European war.

"What would have been the result if the old Republican system had been in effect," he asked. "The stock exchanges in every city in the world were closed. Europe poured its vast holdings in plutarchic streams upon our shores. Who thinks that the old Republican system of finance under the guidance of those patriotic guardians would have been able to withstand this mighty cataclysm? But what was the result? Not a bank closed its doors; not a laborer was thrown out of employment; not a business was forced into bankruptcy; but there stood strong, serving the masses of mankind, this great legislative achievement of the Democratic party. As the master achievement of Woodrow Wilson, to my mind, next to keeping a hundred million people at peace with the world, the historian will record the federal reserve law."

Preparedness Program.
Declaring that "self defense and preparation for it is as necessary now as ever before," the speaker pointed to the administration's preparedness program as a proof that the party believed in "preparedness without militarism."

"In 1906," he continued, "I attended the great peace conference held in London. I thought that the millennium of peace had come and such a thing as the world's war was impossible; but that day when the Christian heart shall rule the world is not in sight. We must not mistake dishonor for peace, as we cannot mistake oppression for peace. Woodrow Wilson and the Democratic party advocate an army big enough to make aggressors think the second time before they strike a blow. Democracy wants an army and a navy in keeping with the dignity, preservation and worth of this great republic. We do not want a foot of anybody else's soil, and by the eternal God, they shall not take a foot of ours."

"During this administration we have done more to build up an army and navy in three years than the Republican party did in forty years of its existence. More has been done to give the American people a navy and army in three months than Col. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft did in eleven years."

Senator James spoke of the Republican platform declaration for "a continuous policy of national defense," declaring that only two propositions for a continuous policy ever had been made in American history, one, by the general board of the navy in 1903, which was pigeon-holed by a Republican secretary of the navy, and the other by President Wilson in his address to Congress last December.

"But what happened when this matter was under consideration in the naval affairs committee of the House?" continued the senator. "Every Republican member on the committee decided to oppose the president's 'continuous program' and would vote for no program longer than one year. After sixteen years of failure, even to let the public know of the 'continuous policy' proposed by naval experts, much less to carry out such a policy, and after the Republicans on the House naval affairs committee, in June, 1916, unanimously opposed the president's policy, they now say they favor the 'continuous policy.'"

Plank Assailed.
The Republican plank, declaring for "an effective system of rural credits as opposed to the ineffective law proposed by the present Democratic administration," was assailed by Senator James, who declared that almost every Republican in the House and Senate had voted for the administration's rural credit bill and that none had charged that it was ineffective or had proposed a substitute.

The senator also replied to Republican criticism of the administration's shipping bill which he declared would have given the United States an adequate merchant marine by now had it not been killed at the last session of Congress by a Republican filibuster.

"For the first time in the history of our country," said Senator James, after reviewing briefly Democratic legislation which he declared had made prosperity possible, "the United States leads the world in exports. We are more prosperous than ever, and mills which have not turned a spindle for years are now busy. All the laborers of the United States are employed as never before. With the world war raging, our country is the only neutral one that is not in distress and the only one that has not declared a moratorium. Every demand of the stress of the war the Democratic party has met quickly. We have freed business from the blackmail of the politician as we have emancipated it from the clutch of monopoly."

Mexican Policy.
The senator likened President Wilson's Mexican policy to that of Lincoln, and quoted from a declaration of the latter to show that he had declined to intervene when conditions were much the same as now.

"It is a perfectly easy thing," he continued, "for the president of the United States to plunge his country into war if he is a politician before he is a patriot. He would seek his own re-election as he came upon horseback up the bloody highway of contending armies. Of course our army could invade Mexico and march in triumph to its capital, but after the war was over other armies would march—an army of cripples and men broken in health, an army of pensioners, and an army of tax collectors gathering up the earnings of the people to pay the great war debt."

The president had acted quickly, the senator said, when there was an invasion of American territory, and the punitive expedition now was doing all that the country could do with honor in Mexico.

Many Delicate Problems.
"No president during the life of this republic," said the senator, "has ever had to deal with so many delicate and dangerous problems as those which have confronted President Wilson. With more than half of the world in arms in Europe, with Mexico in revolution at our border, these difficult and complicating problems have confronted him almost daily, and he has handled them as becomes a patriot and a statesman. When the Lusitania was sunk the militant voice of Theodore Roosevelt cried out for war, and if he had been president of the United States at that time, today 500,000 brave American sons would be contending around the forts of Verdun in this mighty maelstrom of blood—thousands would have been buried in ditches. Our president, patient, patriotic, far-sighted, the real statesman, handled this question with the greatest ability, and won for America its greatest diplomatic victory. There are happy thousands of courage, the courage of the man who is willing to undertake the dangers himself and the courage of the man that sends others to the conflict. Woodrow Wilson has both kinds of courage—the courage of conflict and the courage to act coolly and sensibly when he is dealing with the lives of others—the fate of a nation."

"Four years ago we anneringly called Woodrow Wilson the school teacher. Today he is the world teacher. His subject is the protection of American life and American rights under international law. And without orphaning a single American child, without widdowing a single American mother, without firing a single gun, he wrung from the most militant spirit that ever brooded above a battlefield, an acknowledgement of American rights and an agreement to American demands. He has elevated himself to that lofty but lowly eminence, occupied by George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson, the three worst abused and best loved Americans the republic ever grew."
